

Jack Atkins

Jack Atkins paints the Southwest's intense desert light, its spectacular vistas and the people and things that create its sense of place. He has been fascinated with its cultures and traditions since he was a teenager in Taos, New Mexico, a place that influenced him with how strongly it emphasizes and values art & artists. Now the paintings of this forth generation New Mexican use vivid colors and dramatic compositions to tell the story of this area's underlying sense of drama and history.

Jack's paintings are in a contemporary realist style, usually focusing on southwestern themes, especially those related to regional culture and traditions.

Jack has his home in Albuquerque, New Mexico.
