Barbara Boedeker

I try to capture the simplicity and feeling of primitive art forms (mostly Native American) and present them in a modern way. My Great, great Grandmother was Native American, so I have always had a keen interest in that part of my heritage. I draw inspiration from petroglyphs, pictographs, painted hides, sand paintings as well as pottery of the Mimbres. I am also inspired by the prehistoric painted caves of France (several of which I had the opportunity to visit). I use acrylic paints and a wax resist technique to achieve the unique style of my paintings.
