

Sharyn Davidson

Sharyn Davidson is a native of New Mexico. She spent several years in California earning a degree in Fine Arts with an emphasis on oil & acrylic painting. After returning to New Mexico she studied stone carving & sculpture at the University of New Mexico & pursued independent studies sculpting in cement & clay. Today she works primarily as a sculptor producing limited editions in hydrostone, plaster & originals using a media called shadowstone. Sharyn also creates original tabletop fountains & southwest style windchimes made from New Mexico Coyote Clay.

In addition Sharyn is a successful nature photographer with many published images of the Southwest.
