Patricia Stalgren

Patricia grew up in the Midwest, went to college in Colorado & moved to New Mexico in 1964 thinking it would be temporary. She grew to love the area & to appreciate its unique qualities. The abundance of artists & craftspeople here has always intrigued her.

After teaching school & raising a family, she began working with clay, taking classes here in Albuquerque. Since then she has taken many workshops; learning different techniques for making, decorating & firing pottery. She enjoys making functional stoneware, but she has also done pottery in micaceous clay. She has recently begun working with earthenware. She likes the fact that there is always something new to try.
